Mountain Crane recently completed tilting concrete panels on the North Pointe building in American Fork, Utah using its Manitowoc 2250. This tilt up presented a unique challenge in the form of a number of very large panels measuring 70' wide and weighing up to 180,000 lbs. These unique and challenging panels were expertly tilted by Danny Anderson, one of Mountain Crane's seasoned crane operators.

The large panels were a result of the owner combining three normal panels into one large panel in an effort to eliminate joints on the face of the building. As a result, these 70' wide panels required 32 pick points, seven spreader bars, and 24 snatch blocks to pick and set into place. The Manitowoc 2250 required more boom than usually required on a tilt up in order to facilitate the additional required headroom because of the multiple levels of rigging.

This project represents another first. This is the first time that seven spreader bars and 32-pick points have been used to tilt concrete panels in the Salt Lake Region. Mountain Crane continues to find solutions to unique lifting situations. Mountain Crane's vast experience and large fleet of cranes continues to make Mountain Crane the provider of choice for tilt up concrete construction in the region.

UPDATE: Fallen Warrior Memorial 9/11 Artifact

In the fall of 2013, Mountain Crane Service purchased the Fallen Warrior Memorial 9/11 artifact, made from the remnants of the World Trade Center buildings. After traveling across the country, the memorial made a permanent residency at the Fort Douglas Military Museum in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Several companies and individuals have contributed their services in order to make this possible. Thanks to this support, Mountain Crane has already raised $500,000 toward the cost of bringing this memorial to Fort Douglas.

In our continued efforts to raise funds and awareness for this wonderful cause, Mountain Crane is excited to announce that some museum items are available for sponsorship. Available items include a 1965 Sheraton Tank, the Fallen Warrior 9/11 Artifact, or a 1965 Apache Helicopter. These items have a value of $5,000 display, per day and can be delivered to your business, BBQ, family reunion, birthday party, etc.

Any additional donations are always appreciated.

If you think someone from your city or town is interested in sponsoring one of these items, please contact Dave Belcher (dave@mountaincrane.com or 801-509-2889).
