Building a Big Blue Crane

Mountain Crane recently helped in the erection of a giant crane in Boise, Idaho.

Two large cranes, including Mountain Crane's Liebherr 500t, helped erect a 310 foot tower crane in downtown Boise. This tower crane is tall enough to stretch over Boise's U.S. Bank Building, one of the tallest structures in the state. Starting at the 450-ton steel foundation, the crane installation took a week to complete.

The tower crane will be used to develop Idaho's new City Center Plaza project. The tower crane is expected to remain on the construction site for almost a year, helping build the 18 story tower. This building will serve as the future home of Zions Bank, in addition to two floors of retail stores, space for parking, and office space.

MHT MINUTE Mountain Transformers

Guaranteed you all passed a few transformers on your drive in to work today. No, not the fake CGI Hollywood creations. The real ones that provide you power to cook, shave, and flip the light switch on. Well, since they're just metal and oil, transformers are really heavy and difficult to move. Mountain Heavy Transport and Mountain Crane have the equipment to move these big hunks of steel. Call Ryan for a quote to move your big and heavy objects: 801-556-3828.
